Audit check

When regional funding agencies receive proposals from developers, they need to quickly assess the prospective sites and proposed developments, to determine if the schemes are suitable for receiving assistance.

Fusion is retained by various agencies to assess the location, quality and value of the proposed developments. Their role includes auditing the detailed cost plans, which include construction costs and professional fees, and assessing the project as a whole.

Examples include educational developments, tourism and visitor attractions and industrial properties located in regeneration zones.

Following the completion of assisted projects, Fusion are engaged once more in carrying out regular audit checks, to evaluate the developments and ensure all funding is properly utilised.
